Section 5: Notes

- You can withdraw only once during a tax year from your savings component, ie, 1 March to 28/29 February of the next year.
 - The minimum amount you can withdraw from your saving component before any deductions are made is R2 000. The maximum amount you can withdraw will be limited to the amount in your savings component at any time as shown on your benefit statement. Please note that you will receive less than your chosen savings withdrawal amount because we first need to deduct tax and, if applicable, any section 37D deductions. As part of processing your savings withdrawal benefit, your chosen amount could also be reduced because of market fluctuations; and with a market value adjustment (MVA) if your savings component is invested in a guaranteed investment portfolio and the market value of the assets is below the book value.
 - Your savings withdrawal benefit will be taxed at the marginal income tax rate applicable to you. The income tax you must pay to SARS depends on the income tax brackets that apply to your annual taxable income, and the tax rates for the different income tax bands are known as marginal tax rates.
 - SARS will use the annual taxable income amount you provided on this form to determine the marginal income tax amount that we must deduct from your savings withdrawal benefit before we can pay it to you. It is important that you provide us with an amount that is as close as possible to your annual taxable income. If the tax deducted from your savings withdrawal benefit was based on an incorrect annual taxable income amount, you will have to make an additional payment to SARS when your annual tax assessment is issued.
 - Your annual taxable income is the amount you earned in the tax year in which you apply for a savings withdrawal benefit and is:
 - your income from your employment, such as your salary, wages, bonuses, leave pay, and commission, less your deductible contributions to the Fund and any other allowable tax deductions like a travel allowance, plus
 - if applicable, any other income such as annuities, rental income, and income from investments.
 - Please note that to determine the marginal tax rate that will apply to your savings withdrawal benefit, SARS will first add your chosen savings withdrawal amount to the amount you provided as your annual taxable income. This could result in a higher marginal tax rate being used to calculate the tax to be deducted from your savings withdrawal benefit.
 - If you do not provide us with your annual taxable income, we will insert R0 as your annual taxable income and SARS will then use a default tax rate to determine the tax amount that we must deduct from your savings withdrawal benefit. This could result in you owing SARS money when your annual tax assessment is issued as the tax deducted from your savings withdrawal benefit was based on an incorrect annual taxable income amount.
 - After we receive the tax directive from SARS, and you owe them money we will transfer the amount of the tax debt to SARS before we finalise the payment to you.
 - You cannot make a withdrawal from your savings component if:
 - we are in receipt of valid legal proof that there is a pending divorce order against you, and we do not have written confirmation from your ex-spouse agreeing to your savings benefit withdrawal.
 - there is a pending maintenance order, and we are in receipt of a formal written notice from the maintenance investigating officer, or a maintenance order already in place where the Fund is ordered to deduct a maintenance amount from your retirement savings for a maintenance claimant, and the withdrawal will result in an insufficient amount left in your retirement savings to comply with the maintenance order.
 - there is a signed admission of liability or judgement against you for damages in favour of your employer that has not yet been executed, meaning although we have been notified of the admission or the judgement, we have not yet processed the deduction payment to your employer, and the withdrawal will result in an insufficient amount left in your retirement savings to comply with the admission or judgement.
 - we are aware of a pending judgement against you for damages in favour of your employer, and the withdrawal will result in an insufficient amount left in your retirement savings to comply with the judgement; provided that this suspension of payment of a withdrawal from your savings component will be limited to 12 months.
